Next to the Plow in Importance.

Next to the plow, the disk harrow is more important than any other tool on the farm, according to the opinion of an up-to-date cultivator. It not only pulverizes the soil, working into the seed bed trash before the ground is plowed, but by using it subsequently, lumps are pulverized, plant food is made available by bringing the different elements together and the soil is made compact. In this connection it is safe to say that the disk harrow is one of the best soil packers that has ever been devised.

Putting the Plow Before the Horse.

"Getting the cart before the horse," says Prof. Chas. B. Austin, "has long been recognized as a serious blunder, but it is no worse than putting the plow before the horse, a mistake which is now being made in many sections of the State.

"Recently I was talking to a dealer in farm implements, and during the course of our conversation I questioned him concerning the size of the breaking plows that he sold most frequently. The size of the plow and its relation to the preparation of the seed bed have been discussed by all who are interested in deep tillage, the conservation of the moisture and related questions. The reply that I received from the implement dealer was to the effect that the farmers bought the size plow which best suited the teams that they own. Hence they got the plow before the horse. Acting on this principle the farmer who possesses a small team, capable of drawing no heavy load, will buy light machinery. A light plow means, in the majority of cases, light cultivation, and this in turn means light crops. Emphasis should be put upon this fact when so many people are trying to turn the attention of the farmer from cotton to other crops. Cotton can withstand a dry season which will burn out other crops, that are being proposed, unless the seed bed for these other crops has been prepared to a depth which will hold moisture enough to carry the crop through the dry season.

Catarrah Cannot Be Cured

"The proper principle is not to get a smaller plow but to get a bigger horse. The improvement in the breed of horses can come about in the briefest time by the organization of a great number of local breeders associations, formed on a co-operative basis. This will arouse local enthusiasm, create a working interest and enable the farmer to do in a co-operative way what he could not do acting as an individual."

GEOGRAPHICAL NAMES.

Why Foreign Nomenclature Often Puzzles American Readers.

Foreign geographical names often prove confusing to American readers because each European country has a name of its own for each of its cities, rivers and other geographical features. Every other nation has a different name for the same thing. American geographers follow the English in their nomenclature, but often employ a different pronunciation.

For example, we call one Belgian city Antwerp, while the Belgians and French call it Anvers. We term another Belgian city Mechlin, while at home it is termed Malines. The river Meuse is pronounced in Belgium and France very nearly as we would pronounce it, while the Germans pronounce it as if it were spelled Moysay, and the people of the Netherlands call it the Maas. Brussels is spelled Bruxelles at home, and the final s is not pronounced. Dendermonde, on the river Dender, is pronounced Dandermond by its inhabitants, but it is known as Termonde in most of the geographies. Alost is also spelled Alost. Louvain is Leuven at home, Vienna is Wien and Ghent is Gand.

So one might go down the line. It is to be hoped that some day the geographical societies will get together and agree upon a nomenclature that will be universally adopted.—Detroit Tribune.

$15 Traveling Bag $10

An error in ordering this grip compelled me to dispose of it at a loss of $5. The grip is brand new and isn't damaged. It is made of genuine walrus leather and has brass fixtures. It is certainly a bargain. If you don't need a hand bag, you will do well to buy it and then later re-sell the bag at a profit. Must have cash at once. Phone 65 or call and see it.
